This newsletter also provides a broader overview of key events (meetings, conferences, seminars, exercises), projects and developments within the fields of civil protection and law enforcement, regardless of the institutional affiliation of the actors involved.

We would like to thank our colleagues who shared their stories with us, and especially Professor Sundelius, Strategic Advisor to the Director General of the Swedish Civil Contingencies Agency (MSB), for his interview!

Please do not hesitate to contact us in case you want to find out more details about any of the newsletter items.

Raising risk awareness among Sweden's inhabitants – successful campaign

In May this year, Sweden held its first national Emergency Preparedness Week where MSB contributed to raising risk awareness and self-resilience on an individual level, and encouraged local municipalities to pay more attention to risk communication and the importance of well informed and engaged inhabitants. Almost 80 percent of Sweden's 290 local municipalities joined the campaign, which got wide-spread attention in media. The next campaign is planned in May 2018, with the ambition to provide every household in Sweden (4.5 million) with a brochure on how to act in case of a crisis.

It can be used by rescue services for more efficient resource planning and for the prevention of property destruction and loss of lives. In Riga, the participants agreed on the general framework of the model and the classification of prevention activities. In the coming months academics from the University of Tartu will continue working on developing the model.
